

Anthony J. Rubi

Dr. Kevin Zadai, Instructor

God's chosen Path For You, Level #2

08 January 2024

The level two lessons didn't seem all that different from level one. I don't mean to complain, because I do appreciate the opportunities given me to get my master's degree in Bible and Theology. I'm very grateful to him, and above all, I'm extremely gracious to God. But I wouldn't be transparent if I kept these things to myself and never had a chance to express myself. It just seems like Dr. Kevin Zadai repeats himself over and over again. I've been hearing the same anecdotes for years now, and they're starting to become very redundant.

I know that when Jesus was on the earth, he had to repeat himself many times too. But for goodness sake, I'd like to get it—and move on. I've heard about Jesus visiting Kevin Zadai and his roommate in college more times than I want, I get it, he has had past visitations, thank you for sharing. Can we move on to new material now, please?

However, it is entertaining to watch (in a non-malicious way) the sound of trains pass by the building and sound its loud horn in the middle of Dr. Zadai's lecture, watching him try to ignore the obnoxious sound sometimes makes me laugh.

On a side note, when Dr. Zadai was talking about the enemy's preemptive attacks happening whenever God lights you up and moves upon you, I thought this was a good topic. Because I got hit hard in 2016 before God blessed me with a good job back then, that would later lavish upon me money raises, bonuses, and multiple company benefits. But I remember poverty and lack were trying to devour me before I said, "I don't care what my circumstances say—I'm going to trust in Jesus!” And then the enemy backed off and made room for the blessing to come into my life.

Asking God to give you a desire to serve Him was a good point in the session as well. And treating him like a person, and not like an object to pray to is also a good sign of respect toward Him. In comparison to idolatry, we need to keep our eyes on Jesus, instead of other things that we want that we don't ask Him for. What we focus on, is what we gravitate toward, so we need to focus our eyes on God, not eye-doll-a try.