Prayer Made Easy Level #1

27 October 2023

Lining up with God's will, and asking for the same thing that God wants makes sense, especially when you can look into God's Word (The Bible) and see what His will is, the most obvious one being, a man not living in sin.

Dr. Kevin Zadai gave me the impression that we have to get to a place where we're not anxious or selfish anymore, basically, we have to die to ourselves and die to our wills to simplify prayer—to get the answer. That sounds like a nice cozy theological explanation, but when your faith is being tested for years while you wait for the same thing you ask for every day to be answered, there isn't anything to do but wait and trust in God. Because only God can do it regardless of what anyone tells you.

I did however like how Dr. Kevin Zadai made light of the people (self-proclaimed prophets) who would merchandise products for breakthroughs; items that ministers claimed had a special anointing on them. I think that these people took their sensationalism a little bit too far throughout the years, and it's only because of these TV preachers that I don't like watching Christian television anymore.

When Dr. Kevin Zadai quoted Mathew 6:6, I loved the idea of doing good deeds in secret so that the angels could report me, and have my Heavenly Father reward me openly. Often I have forgotten that fact. Mostly because I think people tend to reflect more on Number 32:23, concerning people who do sins in secret before their sin finds them out—exposing them openly.

I loved the scenery that Dr. Zadai presented of the Apostle Peter, saying that if he visited your church, and people started dropping dead during the offerings, Peter may not get invited back to that church. Therefore we must judge ourselves so that we don't get judged. And that prayer keeps you from temptation. There were many good points that he made in these sessions. And if you're being tempted at any point—go straight into prayer immediately!
