

Anthony J. Rubi

Dr. Kevin Zadai, Instructor

Preparing for an endless life, level #2

07 January 2024

Concerning the following statement: "A lot of people don't experience what they know, and because of that, they find themselves not being able to help people." Nothing can be further from the truth.

Sometimes pastors love to soak up the spotlight and steal the center stage from God, so that when The Holy Spirit wants to speak through that pastor, the pastor won't let him, and being the fact that God is a gentleman, and doesn't force himself on anyone, so he leaves that pastor alone, and if it proceeds for a long length of time, after a while, it seems like God leaves that church, so when Dr. Kevin Zadai spoke about churches quenching The Spirit, that unfortunately starts with the pastors.

Therefore, it is a good policy that if The Holy Spirit is not speaking through us, we shouldn't be saying anything at all, as Dr. Zadai said. The only problem is that I wish the pastors at my church followed the same policy—instead of trying to fake it till they make it.

Either way, it was a good set of teachings, especially the lessons about people fighting you when you are doing God's will, which means they are fighting against God.

Dr. Kevin Zadai's commentary about pastors denying "Deuteronomy 33" comes as no surprise to me, I've watched God in my personal life stand up against my unreasonable enemies many times, and I witnessed firsthand how my enemies tried to frame me of breaking the law, only to see God flip it on them and see my enemies get in trouble instead.

Plus I was very much encouraged by "Isaiah 60:14" because I was afflicted in my ministry at my church too, but God spoke to me in a dream, letting me know that although my ministry was wrecked by the leaders of my church, God has rejected them from me serving my gifts to them, but that the generation after them would accept me, and allow me to use my gifts to serve them instead. To Jesus be the glory.